University Recognition & Awards Program

FOR SHRA AND EHRA NON-FACULTY
EMPLOYEES

North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University's Recognition & Awards Program (University Employee Recognition & Awards Program) serves to highlight the excellence that exists in all areas and job functions across the university by rewarding the accomplishments and achievements of permanent, full-time SHRA and EHRA Non-Faculty employees of N.C. A&T—excluding executive administrators (Senior Academic Administrative Officer, Tiers I and II). Nominees for awards must have three consecutive years of service (permanent full-time) with N.C. A&T as well as meet the respective criteria for selection.

Across the N.C. A&T campus, employees are nominated by their respective college, school or division. (Note: All nominators must be permanent employees of North Carolina A&T State University.) These nominees are then submitted to the University Employee Recognition Committee to determine the five university-level winners (a maximum of one winner per award).

All nominees are invited to attend a banquet where the five award winners receive a plaque.

The five awards for which employees may be nominated are listed below:

- University Award for Excellence in Leadership
- University Award for Excellence in Teamwork
- University Award for Excellence in Performance
- University Award for Excellence in Customer Service
- The Aggie Pride Award (Going the Extra Mile)

UNIVERSITY AWARD FOR EXCELLENCE IN TEAMWORK

The University Award for Excellence in Teamwork is granted to any permanent, full-time SHRA or EHRA Non-Faculty employee of North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University—excluding university administrators (Senior Academic Administrative Officer, Tiers I and II)—with three consecutive years of service (permanent, full-time) with N.C. A&T and who exemplifies the following qualities:

- Demonstrates a spirit of teamwork, cooperation and respectful treatment of others
- Works to meet college, school or division objectives by assisting peers or subordinates, sharing knowledge and stimulating collaboration and a positive work environment for accomplishing tasks
- Accepts responsibility and accountability in helping to advance the university's mission and departmental goals
- Builds effective collaborative relationships with different groups or departments within the university to define and solve problems or reach agreements on a course of action while considering multiple perspectives

The recipient of this award will foster cooperation, collaboration and open communication of the university's policies and procedures to better perform beyond the scope of his/her regular day-to-day job duties and responsibilities. The recipient must have collaborated with others and exhibited significant efforts to advance departmental goals and the university's mission.

Frequency of Award

- One award annually
- This award will only be granted if there are qualified nominations

Criteria for Selection
